

CAMBRIDGE ANTIQUARIAN SOCIETY

Visits to Archaeological Digs

From time to time it may be possible to arrange visits for members to current archaeological digs. By their very nature these would probably be at very short notice, and numbers limited.

Participants would be expected to make their own way to the venue. A small charge (£3.00 per head??) would be made on the day.

Neither the Society nor the organisation responsible for the dig can accept any liability for injuries or other mishaps sustained during such visits, however caused.

If you would like to be included on the circulation list for such events, please return the slip below to Tony Kirby, Excursions Co-ordinator, by 30 April 2011.
